

TRADITIONAL LANGUAGE TRAINING ISN'T DESIGNED FOR NEURODIVERGENT LEARNERS.

In the UK, approximately 15% of the population is neurodivergent; with conditions such as autism, ADHD, dyslexia, and dyspraxia.

- Learners with dyslexia often encounter difficulties with phonology and retaining information.
- Those with ADHD typically struggle with vocabulary retention and maintaining focus.
- Conventional teaching techniques frequently do not offer adequate support.

ABOUT US

At Fully Spoken, we hold the belief that foreign language education should be customised for all individuals, particularly for those whose learning requirements are frequently overlooked in traditional settings.

We assist organisations in connecting with specialised foreign language tutors for neurodivergent employees, students, and clients, ensuring that language learning support is both accessible and personalised.

Our carefully selected tutors specialise in empowering neurodivergent learners as they develop proficiency in grammar, comprehension, reading, writing, and speaking through methods tailored to diverse thinking styles.
